The official journal of the Barnet and District Angling Club

Vol. I

May - June 1954

No. 1

In this the first edition of our journal, we trust that you will find something to your taste. It is our aim through our columns to knit together even more firmly than before the members of our fraternity. Through our pages we shall be able to reach those of our members who are unable to attend our monthly meetings and are therefore possibly unaware of the many activities in which the rest of the members are participating.

We are relying on our readers to assist us by submitting articles or regular features, not necessarily on angling, but in some way associated with it. Brothers of the angle are always keen to hear about the one that got away - The Bull that turned the hunter into the hunted - A description of your favourite stretch of the Ouse or corner at Colney. New ideas and new thoughts for articles or features will be more than welcomed by the Editor.

In our correspondence column we hope to hear your views, be they brickbats or bouquets. Get your feelings off your chest, but as briefly as possible - space is obviously limited. If you wish to write under a nom-de-plume you may do so, always providing that you supply your name and address to the Editor which will of course be treated as confidential.

We as a club have reached our 21st birthday (as pointed out by Mr. Fielding at the Annual Dinner). The first issue of "Quill" has come at a happy moment. Let us hope that in the future, filed copies will prove an interesting record of our activities through our years of maturity.
